GREAT BRITAIN MAKES PROTEST

Panama Canal Toll Case May Go to Hague Tribunal

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—Great Britain has reaffirmed its protest against the Panama canal bill.

In a note filed today at the state department by A. Mitchell Innes, in charge of the British embassy here, it was stated that if a satisfactory agreement could not be reached Great Britain would appeal to the Hague tribunal for arbitration.

The note submitted today says Great Britain will give careful consideration to both the bill and the message President Taft sent to congress, relating to discrimination in favor of the American coastwise shipping in the canal.

It, after due consideration it is found that no satisfactory agreement can be reached in the matter, Great Britain declares that it will be necessary to appeal to arbitration.

Mr. Innes was instructed by his government late yesterday to file the protest and send to the state department shortly before noon today.

It is a brief note stating that Great Britain still stands in her previously explained attitude in regard to the Panama bill. The tone of the note makes it appear that Great Britain believes it will be necessary to submit the question to arbitration.

BRILLIANT HOME WEDDING HELD LAST EVENING

The home of Dr. and Mrs. A. J. Herick on Burdett street was the scene of a pretty home wedding on Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock when their daughter Miss Mabel G. Herick was united in marriage to Irving A. Davis of this city.

The ceremony was performed in the parlor, which presented a handsome appearance, having been banked with palms and ferns by Mannafor the florist. The officiating clergyman was Rev. Edwin Hiltchcock of the Methodist church of Dover, assisted by Rev. Lyle L. Gaither of this city. The double ring service was used.

The bride was handsomely attired in a gown of white satin en train, tulle veil caught with lilacs of the valley and carried a shower bouquet of lilacs of the valley.

The bridesmaid was Miss B. Ruth Herick, a sister of the bride, who was gowned in yellow silk and carried a bouquet of yellow roses.

The best man was Leslie Davis, brother of the groom.

Following the impressive marriage service, which was witnessed by between seventy-five and one hundred relatives and friends of the contracting parties, the guests repaired to a large tent on the lawn where a wedding supper was served for which Crummett of Exeter, catered.

After a wedding trip to various points in Maine, Mr. and Mrs. Davis will reside on Burdett street with the latter's parents.

STILL PROBING FOR FACTS

County Solicitor Guptill Still Hunting for Evidence in Carlson and Reardon Deaths

County Solicitor Ernest L. Guptill is now directing his energies with those of his county squad toward the solution of the four mysterious deaths by drowning. Mr. Guptill on Monday concluded the inquest into the death of Priv. David Helmer Carlson, U. S. M. C., and yesterday began the inquest of the death of Priv. Reardon of 150th company, Coast Artillery, U. S. A. Court proceedings in these cases is postponed pending the finding of the medical examiner.

Mr. Guptill went to Fort Constitution in the afternoon and examined Privates Meredith and Fredericks who are detained at the fort as witnesses. Earlier in the afternoon he examined Samuel Pigrim, John Buzzell, Frank Harvey and Joseph Monahan, who were with Private Reardon immediately preceding his death.

According to the evidence of the four civilians and the two soldiers, Private Reardon walked with them from the city to the Newcastle bridge. Before reaching the bridge he attacked Monahan but the latter, according to the evidence, but Monahan warned off and Reardon lay on the ground several minutes, refusing to rise to his feet. In their belief he was the subject of alcoholic dementia.

When they reached the bridge Reardon and Meredith preceded Fredericks and the four civilians who turned back in the direction of this city. When they had walked about 200 yards they were overtaken by Meredith, who shouted that Reardon was overboard. They returned to the bridge, manned boats and searched the river but could not find Reardon whose body was seen the following morning on the flats at the foot of South Mill street.

In the Carlson case, in which the inquest closed Tuesday, more than a score of witnesses, many of them inmates of the Asay house on Water street, near which the body was found, were examined. According to Mr. Guptill, he developed considerable evidence of importance. Corp. Geo. Newton, U. S. M. C., is under arrest at the county jail charged with manslaughter in this case. Newton appeared as a witness in this case.

Newton was scheduled for arraignment in the police court Saturday, but the arraignment was postponed in order that the inquest might be concluded.

Mr. Guptill said that there are no suspicious circumstances connected with the deaths of the Greek sailor, whose body was found on the Maine shore near the Kittery bridge and of Private Eshler, U. S. M. C., whose body was found in the lower harbor. Eshler was last seen intoxicated on Noble's island at the Portsmouth end of the Portsmouth bridge. Several passers-by attempted to rouse him but he did not respond. Mr. Guptill assumes that Eshler subsequently arose and fell into the Piscataqua river from the bridge. His body then drifted to the harbor.

In the case of the Greek sailor who was attached to the cutter Hannibal, Mr. Guptill says that there is no record that the man was granted leave of absence from the vessel. It is Mr. Guptill's theory that the man dropped over the side of the vessel and was drowned in an attempt to swim across the "back channel" to the Kittery shore.

COST OF LIVING IS NOT SO HIGH

During the panic of 1907 many merchants boosted prices. They figured that not so many people would buy and those who did could afford to pay the longer price.

After the panic a lot of these merchants forgot to reduce their profits. You'll find that in stores which require only a reasonable profit, prices are practically no higher.

Compare our prices with prices elsewhere or with the prices for similar goods five years ago. Then come in and compare quality.

An expert has estimated that 60 per cent of the Misses population average about 5 feet 3 inches in height. For this type of Miss, we have, after careful study, produced Suits that have short waisted lines, so as to give correct and more artistic proportion of lines to height. This produces a much more graceful appearance and does away with the expenses of alteration of large garments which at their best are awkward and clumsy.

OPEN CONVENTION WEDNESDAY

State Meeting of the Hibernians at Manchester

The 15th Biennial State convention of the Ancient Order of Hibernians and the ninth annual convention of the Ladies' Auxiliary was opened at headquarters of the Knights of Columbus, Manchester, with a service of benediction by the State chaplain Rev. Dr. John Moran of Claremont. Bishop Guertin was represented by Rev. Fr. E. P. Farrell of the cathedral.

The divisions of the order met at the hall of Division 1 on Manchester street and headed by a band and with Division 8, marched to the old battery building, where they were joined by Divisions 7 and 2.

After the service which was attended by nearly 400 delegates, the preliminary meeting was opened at the headquarters of the Knights of Columbus.

James P. Tonery of Manchester, president of Division 1, called the session to order and introduced the State president, John Parsons of Somersworth. On the platform besides the State president were State Chaplain Moran, Mayor Edward C. Smith of Manchester, Mrs. W. E. Dillen of Nashua, State president of the auxiliary branches, Chairman Tonery and Vice president George P. Scott of Portsmouth.

HIGHWAY ON NOBLE ISLAND IN BAD SHAPE

While the street department has been repairing more or less the roads entering this city it has neglected one of the most important thoroughfares that of Noble's Island. No road leading to the business section of Portsmouth is in such a bad condition as the highway from the toll gate to the railroad crossing on first bridge on the road leading to Market street. Here the automobile traffic is decidedly heavy say nothing of the great amount of teaming. It has been several years since any attention was given this section and it is certainly time that something was done.

REGIMENT OF SOLDIERS SENT TO PRESERVE ORDER

United States To Use Iron Hand On Nicaragua.

Washington, Aug. 28.—American troops will be sent to Nicaragua within the next forty-eight hours. On advice of conditions said to be so serious as to justify not being made public in Washington, President Taft from Beverly today personally directed the immediate movement of the Tenth United States Infantry, now on the Panama Canal Zone, to Nicaragua to guard American lives and property. United States troops now being rushed south on the transport Pacific, via Colon, and the cruiser California, cannot reach Nicaragua for possibly a week. Despatches of last night and early today pictured the situation as being so acute that an immediate movement of a large force of troops was necessary.

The Tenth recruited to full war strength and fully equipped for campaigning the tropics, is to be taken aboard merchant ships in the harbor of Panama and rushed to Corinto. They will be reshipped along the line of the railway from Corinto to Managua, the capital, at points where American Minister Weitzel and Commander Terhune of the gunboat Annapolis believe they will afford most protection. Colonel Henry A. Green commands the regiment.

Tales of Barbarity.
Allegations of conditions bordering on barbarism, and acts even worse than those which took the troops of the United States into China to quell the Boxer rebellion have been received at the State Department within the last twenty-four hours. GEORGE BONHAG

PRESS ASSOCIATION

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—George Bonhag, the crack distance runner, has announced that he will retire from the athletic field immediately after the coming championships have been decided. Bonhag at present holds all the records, both indoors and outdoors, for running from four to ten miles with the exception of the indoor mark at ten miles, and the reason for his failure to annex that record is that he never ran that distance indoors.

Rebels firing upon flags of truce borne by loyal Nicaraguan troops as well as American marines is said to have been frequent within the last few days. New attacks upon women and children and other non-combatants are reported. In the rebel shelling of Managua during the first days of the revolution, American Minister Weitzel reported that the firing had been indiscriminate upon the people of the city occupied by the non-combatants and that an American collector of customs named Ham, and several other Americans narrowly escaped injury by bursting shells.

RYE BEACH DEFEAT NORTH CAROLINA

The Rye Beach collegians won a hard fought game this afternoon from the U. S. S. North Carolina nine 5 to 4 on the Farragut grounds. For the locals, Hutchinson of De Lancy's school, Philadelphia, a preparatory, to the university of Pennsylvania pitched winning ball not withstanding the fact that his support was ragged. Johnnie Simons, Harvard's famous shortstop won the game in the ninth with a single to center. The stickwork of Bell of Haverford and the all round playing of "Hobey" Baker, Princeton's hockey star was also noteworthy for the winners while Furnsworth, Harris, Fenlan and Ormsby excelled for the sailors.

AVIATOR'S BODY CONSUMED IN WRECK

Douai, France, Aug. 28.—Lieut. Louis Felix M. Chandonier of the aviation corps was burned to death while flying in his aeroplane today. He started from this city for Chalons on the test necessary for the acquisition of the pilot's certificate. When he reached Crecy-Sur-Seme, about half the distance, his petrol tank burst into flames and the machine crashed to the earth. The earth. The young officer's body was completely consumed by the fire. He

THE PRICE OF COAL GOING UP

The coal dealers of Manchester have advanced the price of coal 50 cents a ton, which makes it the highest since the big strike of 1896. The prevailing price in Manchester for new ls. Nut coal $8.75, stove and egg $8.50, pea, 7.00; Franklin, $9.50; furnace, $5.50.

The price of coal took a jump of 25 cents a ton in Boston on Monday, owing to the what the dealers claim is a shortage.

The Boston price is: Nut, $7.50; stove, $7.25; Egg, $7.50; furnace, $7.00. The local dealers have not as yet advanced the price, and coal is now selling at the following figures. Nut coal, $7.75, stove, $7.50, Egg, 7.25. Broken coal or furnace, $6.75.

MAY PLAY YET.

CONGRESSMAN PLAYS A JOKE

Sabbath of Illinois "Puts One Over" on Astute Member From New York.

During the hot spell, just past, Washington's one and only roof garden became suddenly the center of attraction for members of congress marooned here on the sweltering nights. Not less than 50 of the legislators were assembled in little knots of four or five. In one group sat John J. Fitzgerald of New York. At another table was William Calder, the only Republican from Greater New York. Far over in the corner was Adolph Sabath of Illinois, the villain of this story.

Calling a waiter, Mr. Sabath scribbled a few lines on a card. "Take this to Mr. Calder," said he. The note read as follows:

"Dear Bill: Please let me have twenty, quick. I'm in ditch. Hastily, Fitz."

Mr. Calder dragged forth his wallet. He produced fifteen of the required sum and placing it in an envelope dispatched it to the other Brooklyn man's table with the following endorsement:

"Fitz: Sorry, but this is the best I've got. Keep it, Bill."

Mr. Fitzgerald was nonplussed. He looked across the broad roof at Calder, but failed to catch his eye. Then he wrote on the back of the envelope:

"Dear Bill: I'm blessed if I know what you're up to, but if you want to put fifteen in cold storage I'm your party. Fitz."

Mr. Sabath did not tell this story.

Old Tavern to Go.
Hungerford Tavern, where George Washington used to stay when he paused at Rockville, one of the suburbs of Washington, in his trips through this part of the country, is to be torn down. The quaint little old inn is to be replaced by a modern building. The Daughters of the American Revolution held an option on this property for a number of years, but it expired a short time ago, and they were unable to make payment. Besides George Washington, Hungerford Tavern held within its hospitable walls other famous men, including Gen. La Fayette, Ben Franklin, Thomas Jefferson and Gen. Braddock, leader of the ill-fated expedition in the French and Indian war of 1755. Wm. Payton, an Englishman, built the tavern in 1750. For many years it has been owned by Miss Lucy B. Russell, of Washington.

"Break" on the Wire.

Two telegraph operators were seated in a downtown cafe recently when an athletic young man and an exceedingly pretty girl entered. They were placed at a table opposite the "key" men, who were sitting side by side in a position facing the girl. As is the custom of the craft when wishing to discuss someone in a public place they telegraphed to each other, using their knives on the plate.

"Peacherino, isn't she?" one ticked to the other.

"A tree full," came back the tapping reply. "Wonder who the sack is with her?"

"Search me—looks like a boob tied up with a wren like her."

"Bet they aren't married. If they are, all she needs to do to get a divorce is to exhibit that map of his in court."

While the two men were enjoying a huge laugh over their silent joking they were surprised and somewhat alarmed to hear some more "table knife telegraphy." The "peacherino" was doing it and she did not look at all pleased, either.

"You two would better look out while you are all together," carelessly ticked her knife blade while she listened to something her companion was saying. "This sack and boob, as you called him, with the divorce map, is my husband—hollemaker by trade. He eats fresh little boys."

Something happened to the "wire" about that time and all communication ceased.—Kansas City Journal.

The Toledo Blade remarks that there is a theory that only persons of marked intellectuality have any fever. This is offered as a comforting thought to be taken between paroxysms of sneezing.

The New York World says that Theodore Roosevelt has earned the distinction of being the only man who ever held the office of President of the United States whose testimony invariably required corroboration.

The Chicago Record-Herald says the following perplexing but suggestive paragraph is from the Graphic of Los Angeles:

"Evidently we are to vote on the free lunch question, as a referendum has been circulated by the supply people, who are the worst sufferers of the proposed new law. The issue is to be submitted to the voters in the fall."

If the fate of the free lunch and the free luncher is thus to be determined we submit that in all fairness the vote should be by districts, and that each district should be allowed to decide for itself. Turning to our own locality for an illustration, it would be intolerable if the devotees of the free lectures in Evanston should settle the question of free lunches for South Clark street. But anyway, there is certainly food for thought in a free lunch referendum. What next?

The Springfield Republican says the governor was in Vermont yesterday, the lieutenant governor remained in Maine, but Massachusetts remained on the map. The state constitution had provided for this grave emergency by declaring that when there is neither a governor nor a lieutenant governor in the commonwealth the executive council, "or a major part of them, shall, during such vacancy have full power and authority to do and execute all and every such acts matters and things as the governor or the lieutenant governor might or could, by virtue of this constitution do or execute if they do either of them were personally present." If the council were abolished, of course some other provision could be made for the maintenance of authority but is there any compelling reason why both the governor and lieutenant governor should go away at the same time?

Bird's Eye Views.

A Progressive candidate is going to run against Nick Longworth. That kind of thing always will happen when a man votes without taking his wife's advice.

It is claimed some of the New York police could have caught the Rosenthal murderers, but perhaps they think there is no money in catching criminals, anyway.

How can anyone say that army life provides no wholesome recreations when our soldiers have just been landed to straighten out the revolution in Nicaragua?

Some of the New York officials who were disposed at first to hold aloof have concluded that Herman Rosenthal's social standing had nothing to do with the case.

An abundance of feed crops was expected to lower the price of beef. The explanation as to why it did not prove to be highly interesting.

These spectacular preparations for 1916 show the manner in which a man of over energetic intellect is liable to get away ahead of his story.

Hereafter conventions might save time and trouble by allowing the fifty or sixty minute introductory ovation to be taken for granted.

The calamity howler will have to take to the woods this year. Crop yields and business prospects make it a bad year for him to come out into the open.

William Jennings Bryan rises to remark that political parties are not possessed of much gratitude. Mr. Bran is in a position to be an authority on this subject.

Governor McGovern of Wisconsin, had received a petition asking that John Dietz of Cameron Dam fame, be pardoned. The petition contains 24,000 signatures.

A man who devotes his life to running for President is liable to want a handsome endowment instead of a mere campaign contribution.

Becker has been referred to as "money mad." Allenists should lost no time in taking up the study of dementia pecuniaria.

A demand for public concerning campaign funds is showing reminiscent tendencies that were not contemplated.

Setting a policeman to catch a policeman does not work out as a practical proposition in some of our great cities.

Washington's baseball club has managed to introduce a progressive movement that amounts to something.

THE NEW SUNDAY ORDER.

It is difficult to exaggerate the stupor of the recent action of Congress in regard to the distribution of mail on Sunday.

Ostensibly designed to lessen work in that day this change will be really enormously increase it. The reason is simple. Only special delivery letters can now reach their addressees and the number of these letters will in consequence greatly increase, as well as telegrams and telephone calls. The special delivery is necessarily wasteful of human energy. It requires vastly more Sunday labor to distribute 100 such letters than it would 10,000 by the methods which Congress has just prohibited. For example: A single messenger boy could go to the postoffice and take out the mail for all the patrons of a large hotel for distribution by its clerks. It was the same with apartment houses and various institutions. But this has been ended and the hotel guest will now receive in Sunday only such letters as are "personally conducted" to him under a 10 cent stamp.

Another curious phase of this regulation entirely characteristic of government operations, is that it strikes at the large cities where popular practices are much more liberal than in the rural districts, while leaving the latter unchanged. The postoffice in the small town may still open on Sunday morning, according to custom, but in the great cities, with their large transient population, an embargo has been laid on all corresponding conveniences. This is very unfortunate. It will entail serious hardship. Few things are more welcome to the stranger in a hotel on a long Sunday than the receipt of a letter from home.

And the messages will surely be only difference will come in the necessity of doing it by round-a-bout and expensive ways, and by those which involve a vastly larger volume of labor in proportion to the interests served than the method which has been discontinued.

This is a sample of the way the government does business, and yet thousands of reformers at every turn of events are clamorous to have everything committed to its clumsy hand. A bill for Uncle Sam to take over the telegraph lines received serious consideration in the session just closed. Would any one want the delivery of telegrams on Sunday discontinued? And yet this would be little greater folly than that which has just been written into the postal law. Boston Herald.

SOMETHING ABOUT OLD COINS

There has been considerable in the papers lately about old coins which have been found in out of the way places and their value. Frequently people think a coin is valuable because it is old but hundreds are worth only their face value.

The only way to find out the value of coins is to consult an expert or some reliable book authority.

One find reported recently was of a half dollar of the alleged date 1763. That is 13 years before the Declaration of Independence and before this country was an independent country or had any coinage of its own. The silver dollar and the silver half dollar were first coined in this country in the year 1794, according to Jameson's Dictionary of United States history, and that date is probably correct.

German Emperor, Who Has Canceled All Engagements on Account of Illness.

Emperor Wilhelm is suffering from an attack of catarrh and painful muscular rheumatism. While the illness is not believed to be alarming, it is sufficiently serious to compel him to cancel all immediate engagements, including the "kaiser maneuvers," from which he has never been absent since his accession to the throne in 1888. His majesty is at Wilhelmshofen castle, near Cassel. The arrow indicates the kaiser shown reviewing his troops.

ENGLAND STILL PROTESTS THE CANAL BILL

Washington, Aug. 28.—Great Britain has reaffirmed its protest against the Panama Canal bill.

In a note filed today to the State Department by A. Mitchell Innes, charge of the British Embassy here, it was stated that if a satisfactory agreement could not be reached Great Britain would appeal to the Hague tribunal for arbitration.

The note submitted today says Great Britain will give careful consideration to both the bill and the message President Taft sent to Congress, relating to discrimination in favor of American coastwise shipping in the canal. If after due consideration it is found that no satisfactory agreement can be reached in the matter, Great Britain declares that it will be necessary to appeal to arbitration.

Mr. Innes was instructed by his Government late yesterday to file the protest, and sent it to the State Department shortly before noon today. It is a brief not stating merely that Great Britain still stands in her charge of the embassy during the absence of Ambassador Bryce, came to Washington recently from the Summer headquarters of the British Embassy at Kineo, Me., to remain during the discussion in Congress of the bill, and to file for his Government the protest against it. He expects to return today to Maine.

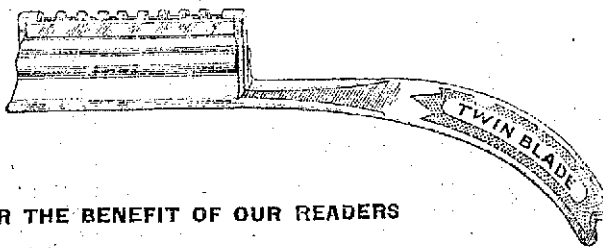

One State Department official today declared that he did not believe Great Britain had a case to carry before the Hague tribunal. Messrs. Root, Lodge and other Senators are on record as declaring that the United States would certainly lose should the case be referred to The Hague.

TWIN BLADE SAFETY RAZOR

Regularly sold for $1, for one coupon cut from this paper and only 48c.

This is the only safety razor we have seen that makes a professional barber's stroke possible.

It is constructed on an entirely new principle and does away with the sensation of pulling, scraping and tearing, the common fault of the ordinary "hog-type."

The peculiar curve of the handle so fits the hand that you get an unusually firm grip, absolutely preventing vibration and permitting a natural, sweeping, DIAGONAL STROKE.

This razor is better finished than razors costing many times as much, and will give you more real satisfaction than any razor you can buy, no matter what the price.

For the convenience of our readers, the Portsmouth Herald has made arrangements with The Tilton Drug Co., 31 Market St., to redeem this coupon.

THIS COUPON properly filled out and presented to The Tilton Drug Co., 31 Market St., with 48c (52c by mail), entitles the bearer to a dollar TWIN BLADE SAFETY RAZOR, with the compliments of The Portsmouth Herald.

Breezy Items From Village Across the River.

This being the fifth Thursday in the month there is no regular meeting of the local lodges.

Herman Manson and Harry Goodrich were visitors at York Beach, yesterday.

Dr. Walter Gleason, wife and daughter of Effingham, Mass., were guests of Mrs. Hiram Sherburne on Wednesday.

Leslie Coombs of New York was a recent visitor with friends at the Intervene.

Roy Woodward is reported as being more comfortable.

About fifty members of Piscataqua Chapter, No. 30, O. E. S., responded to the invitation sent out by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wiggall to spend the afternoon and evening of Wednesday at their bungalow at Rye beach. Nearly all went down at 3 o'clock and passed a pleasant afternoon on the beach, until 6 o'clock when supper was served, the menu consisting of fish chowder, hot coffee, sandwiches, assorted cake and pies and all kinds of fruit. Games were enjoyed until a late hour when the party dispersed to their homes voting Mr. and Mrs. Wiggall royal entertainers.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Bowden and daughter, Sadie, attended the Locke reunion at Rye on Wednesday.

Mrs. Baker of Cape Cod, Mass., is visiting her son, Edgar Baker, and wife of Otis avenue.

Miss Charlotte M. Bickford of Pleasant street is enjoying her vacation from her duties in Portsmouth.

Rev. Wallace Hayes, of St. Paul, Minn., is the guest of his brother, Rev. Allison J. Hayes.

Miss Emily Shaw is improving from her illness.

Mrs. Regina McKenna and friend, Miss Janette McElhin, passed Wednesday at York Beach.

Quite a number from this town attended the musicale at Green Acre on Wednesday afternoon.

A BOSTON GIRL'S BUDGET

Dimas Joy Rides are Sold by the City of Boston—New Move in the Plan of Park Popularization—Hub's Mayor Seeks Public Market Site—This, with Electric Express, Would Cut Cost of Living—Laundryman Gently Raps Unprogressive New England—Woman's "Steam Callopie" May Run for Office.

Boston, Aug. 28, 1912.

Whether Susan W. Fitzgerald, sometimes known as the "woman steam callopie," will be the progressive candidate for secretary of state interests Massachusetts suffragettes. It interests many others as well, for this daughter of the late Admiral John G. Walker has a wide acquaintance and has cut a wide swath since her return to the Bay State a few years ago. He is a forceful and eloquent speaker, equally effective when standing astride a pair of empty beer kegs before a crowd of mill operatives or when addressing a gathering of society women in a North Shore drawing room. Although her voice is pitched rather low, it has a carrying power that makes her able to be heard in conditions such that no other woman speaker can be understood. In her ideas she is a progressive of progressives. Mrs. Fitzgerald is related on her mother's side to the Pickering, Eliots, Wigs, gleworths and other families of Boston's social hierarchy and through her father's people to many substantial citizens of New Hampshire. If such a woman should be elected—but then not even the most enthusiastic suffragist expects miracles of the staid old Commonwealth. Even in Massachusetts, nevertheless, the world does move.

Returning from the Detroit convention of the National Laundrymen, President Arthur T. Downer of the Massachusetts state Laundrymen's association delivers a few good natured but pointed thrusts at New England unprogressiveness. Twelve cars filled with cheering purveyors of laundry service rolled into Detroit from Chicago, representing the gathering of the craft from the Windy City and the adjacent territory. From Massachusetts but two laundrymen were in attendance; the rest of New England was but thinly represented. "Most people hereabout seem to suppose that civilization ends with the Hudson River," says Mr. Downer. "Considering the immense benefit that comes to all New England from the many conventions that visit Boston, the members thereof dispersing to spend their good money in the mountains and at the seashore, it would appear that New Englanders should, when possible, reciprocate. In all lines of business they are doing things worth seeing beyond the Alleghenies."

Joy rides for a dime represent all the expenditure now needed for the non-jaded tourist to see the beauties of Boston's Franklin Park. There are some kinds of municipal enterprise of which every one must approve, and one of these is the newly inaugurated automobile service that makes it possible for a merely nominal sum to enjoy a ride over smooth roads amidst an attractive mountain scenery as any the "mountain" intentionally, for in laying out Franklin Park a quarter of a century ago, Mr. Olmsted's leading motive was to open up all possible vistas of the rolling Blue Hill range, the original Massachusetts, or "place of great hills," from which the state got its name. Consequently today, over and over again, the driver of the city's motor car makes a pause on some hillcrest from which the eye gets a practically uninterrupted sweep across wooded heights and fat pastures to these summits which loom quite as picturesquely on the horizon as the Berkshires from the hill towns of central Massachusetts or the White Mountains from the hills of western Maine. The automobiles for the present will run every afternoon, with additional service on Saturdays and Sundays, starting from the entrance near the rectory on the Blue Hill Avenue side.

OBSEQUES.

Arthur H. Rand

The funeral of Arthur H. Rand was held from the home of his father, John S. Rand on State street today at 3 o'clock. Rev. Mr. Dana of Exeter officiating. Interment was in South cemetery in charge of Undertaker O. W. Ham.

Exclamations of surprise and pleasure overheard on some of the trips on the opening day, Saturday, Aug. 24, made it certain that the Boston park commission has never done a more popular thing than to start such a service. The trip occupies about an hour. It terminates at the magnificent new flying cage of the Zoological Garden in which more than 200 rare birds, contributed by Col. John E. Thayer of Lancaster are of themselves well worth visiting the park to see. The automobile service may or may not pay for itself financially; it is already paying in popularity.

Between New England farmers and Boston housewives only two factors need intervene, to the advantage of the one in cost of provisions, of the other in prices to be obtained for things raised on the farm. So at least thinks the ever energetic and versatile Mayor John F. Fitzgerald who is busily seeking a site for a municipal market of the kind familiar to visitors in many European cities. He holds that such a selling place will prove an important agency of reduced cost of living. He maintains furthermore, that the fruits, poultry and green groceries which would be traded in at this public market should be brought to Boston via the economical, convenient and reliable electric express. Concerning the municipal market, many Bostonians may still want to be shown; though the success of such vending plans is understood to be considerable elsewhere. Of the popularity of the electric express no one can doubt who has seen it in operation in southeastern Massachusetts. There, along the trolley lines, one may note platform stacks high with produce from the farms of the adjacent territory and may see it loaded quickly into the capacious, smooth running express cars. One hears from producers of berries and vegetables that these now reach market in perfect condition, not having been shaken up and down by a long haul in a jolting wagon. One talks with local merchants who admit that their dealings with wholesalers in Providence and Boston were never so satisfactory as now when a telephoned order brings the goods on the next electric express. Northern and central Massachusetts and southern New Hampshire are said to only waiting the settling of the question of getting through the cordon of suburbs around Boston between the Charles River and Revere Beach. Soon thereafter from Greenfield on the west and Concord on the north the electric express will make their daily jaunts right down to the most populous centre of New England. That will mean better sales for the producer and better goods for the consumer, whether or not the doughty mayor gets through his project for a public market.

ANOTHER POLICE INSPECTOR WITH MONEY

New York, Aug. 28.—A mysterious woman appeared before Asst. Dist. Atty. Conlon and Moss at the Criminal Courts Buildings today, and told them that a police inspector recently paid $70,000 for a tract of land at Bay shore. The district attorney immediately ordered investigation to find where the inspector got the $70,000.

The woman did not know the inspector's name, but she gave such a good description of him that the assistant district attorneys immediately began the investigation of a certain inspector's record.

It is learned that the woman—who refused to allow her name to be made public—was in a real estate office conducting some business of her own, when the inspector entered. She overheard a discussion as to the Bayshore property. The real estate dealer told the inspector the owner of the property had dropped his price from $90,000 to $70,000 so the inspector told the real estate man to go ahead and close the deal.

A fight between Lieut. Becker and J. D. Hallen was narrowly averted in the Tombs this morning when the prisoners were let out of their cells for morning exercise. Hallen is the convicted forger who has a cell next to Becker's and who said that he heard Detective White say to Becker, "I guess they've got us, Chief."

Becker learned last night what Hallen had said. Today he asked that Hallen be pointed out to him. He strode up to Hallen and seized his right arm in a tight grip and said, "I'm Becker. I just wanted to introduce myself. Why didn't you make this statement to the district attorney about me and White?"

He shook Hallen, who tried to wrench away, but Becker held him tight. Hallen made no reply.

You knew it was a lie when you said it," Becker said. "What did you do it for? What did you expect to get out of it?"

He shook the frightened Hallen again, and continued: "Let me tell you what I think of you. You're a despicable cur. It's bad enough to have regular stool pigeons roaming around here without having men like you lying about a prisoner. You knew you lied. What did you do it for?"

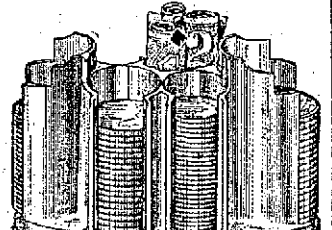

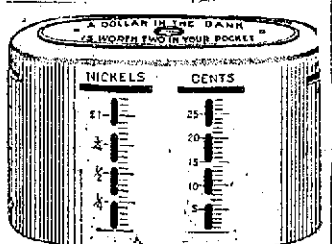

Hallen finally twisted away and slipped into his cell and closed the door. Hallen is a disbarred lawyer.

After Hallen fled to his cell Becker told the newspapermen that there are five stool pigeons on his tier, and that men and women, even ministers, are continually bothering his wife in an attempt to get information from her.

DEATH SEEMED CLOSE MAN LIVED YEARS IN FEW AGONIZING MINUTES.

And After All the Cause of the Trouble Was Not a Rattlesnake, Though That Seemed the Only Explanation.

"Oh, dear," said Dorothy, suddenly, looking up from her newspaper, "there's a snake loose!"

"In Upper Potting?" I said. "Impossible. This is a respectable residential suburb."

"But there is," she persisted. "It has escaped the naturalist's shop at the corner. This late edition says so. Whatever shall we do? Suppose it gets into our bathroom?"

"We shall hear the water running if it attempts to have a bath," I reassured her. "Then we can go up and sneak the soap. How big is it?"

"Small—but very deadly."

"After all, perhaps it's all for the best," I mused. "It may be the means of reforming some heavy drinker before he has gone too far."

And then, as if to show how closely comedy and tragedy can be allied, it happened.

It was cold and clammy, and I felt it run rapidly down my leg. Beads of perspiration stood upon my brow, and a convulsive shudder ran through me.

"Someone walking over your grave?" asked Dorothy, who can always be relied upon to make the proverbial remark; but she won no answering smile from me. This was no time for mirth, with death staring me in the face—or, to be correct, in the right trouser leg.

"Quiet," I whispered. "Something cold has just run down my leg. It must be the snake."

"Oh, dear," she shrieked. "And now you'll die of hydrophobia!"

"Not if we're calm," I replied. "Do as I tell you as quietly as possible. Perhaps it won't bite if it's not disturbed."

Then I bade her come to me and gently unlaced my right boot. Once more I felt that cold wriggle as I extended my foot, and we waited quietly for five agonizing minutes. I got pins and needles so badly that I feared they would prick the reptile and irritate it, but I dare not move. At the end of the five minutes I changed our tactics and handed her my penknife.

"Cut the lace," I recommended—"gentle. Don't cut me. If once he smells blood I am done for."

Then I bade her remove the boot. But, softly as she did it, once again there came the clammy wriggle, and now the thing was at my foot. With its arrival at the toe further progress would be baffled by the sock, and thus baffled, it would probably strike.

The time for caution had gone by. Swiftly I stooped and grasped at the spot, praying fervently that I might clutch its neck and so prevent its biting. And as I snatched there came a musical chink.

"It's a rattlesnake," screamed Dorothy. "Oh, do be careful!"

"On the contrary, my dear," I replied. "It is some cents that have clipped down my leg through a hole in the trousers pocket. I am saved."

I poured out a whisky and soda with trembling hands, while on the hearth rug Dorothy sobbed hysterically over my merciful deliverance.

Yellow Writing Paper Easy on Eyes
Oculists have often called attention to the fact that the eyes are easily fatigued by the reflection from white paper, especially when the surface is under a strong light. Since green is known to be the color most restful to the eyes, it is a common practice to use wall papers and draperies of that color in libraries and private studies. For writing paper, however, green is an unsatisfactory color. It imparts a reddish appearance to the writing and makes it hard to read.

Yellow writing paper is not open to the same objection. In strong day light it is softer than pure white paper, and in artificial light is not too dark. Black letters on a yellowish background show clear and distinct. Many mathematicians use yellow paper in figuring long and difficult calculations, and many writers have adopted it for manuscripts. It has the additional merit of cheapness—Yout's Companion.

Those Pleasant Questions.
Dubbleigh's car lay flat on its side and deep in the mud in the freshly plowed field, having skidded off the road, through the low stone wall, to get there.

"Ah!" cried a passer-by from the roadside. "Had an accident?"

Dubbleigh tried to hold his tongue, but the strain was too much for him. "No, of course not," he replied coldly. "I've just bought a new car and have brought my old one out here to bury it. Got a pick-ax and a shovel in your pocket you could lend me? I can't seem to dig very deep with my motor-born."—Harper's Weekly.

Mother Was Puzzled.
A man who has an office downtown called his wife by telephone the other morning, and during the conversation asked what the baby was doing.

"She is crying her eyes out," replied the mother.

"What about?"

"I don't know whether it is because she has eaten too many strawberries or because she wants more," replied the discouraged mother.—Indianapolis News.

STILL ALARM. The Chemical Engine was called to the dump on Stewards wharf, shortly before ten o'clock Wednesday evening to take care of a fire which had started in the rubbish heap, and was threatening surrounding property.

"I think as highly of Doan's Kidney Pills today as I did years ago when I first used them. At that time I was in a bad way as the result of kidney trouble, and though I had repeatedly tried remedies to get relief, my efforts were in vain. When Doan's Kidney Pills came to my attention, I procured a supply at Philbrick's Drug Store and began using them as directed. In a short time I was rid of kidney trouble and felt better in every way. I occasionally have a slight pain in my back, but a few doses of Doan's Kidney Pills give me prompt relief."

HOW GEMS ARE IMITATED

Nature Copied With Remarkable Success by the Men Who Make Counterfeit Precious Stones.

The makers of imitation precious gems copy nature with remarkable success.

Zirconia are composed of zirconia. Their luster is deceptive, a means having been discovered of extracting the color, thus leaving them diamonds to all appearances, although their false nature promptly proclaims itself under test.

Precious stones are frequently dyed with such thoroughness that, it is said, the stone may be broken without discovery of the process—that is, by the uninitiated.

The village of Oberstein, in Germany, devotes itself to the making of imitation jewelry and the dyeing of chalcidony and other stones. The onyx, carnelian, bloodstone, and agate may be enriched in color by immersion in the dye-pot. The stones are placed in vessels containing the coloring matter and are then subjected to a great heat for periods varying from a few hours to a week or more. In the case of chalcidony, which shows bands of different degrees of intensity, certain of the bands take the color and others do not. The stone then receives a further staining in pots containing other dyes.

Fluorspar is capable of great improvement in that when subjected to a heating process and crucidolite is given a hue of blood-red by a similar method.

The emerald and the cat's-eye are of all stones the most easily imitated. One family at Oberstein is said to possess the secret of converting crucidolite into cat's-eye. Cat's-eye may also be made of argonite, some of the hornblende and even of fibrous gypsum. —Harper's Weekly.

CEMETERY LOTS

CARED FOR AND TURFING DONE

With increased facilities the subscribers again are prepared to take charge of and keep in order such lots in any of the cemeteries of the city as may be entrusted to their care. They will also give careful attention to the turfing and grading of them, also to the cleaning of monuments and head stones, and the removal of sods. In addition to work at the cemeteries they will do turfing and grading in the city on short notice.

WOMAN GOT A LESSON

INCIDENT OF TWO GIRLS AND THE STOLEN PEONIES.

How the Shabbily Dressed Man Administered Gentle But Effective Reproof to the Owner of the Pillaged Brooklyn Garden.

Two poorly dressed little girls stood outside the garden of a handsome residence in St. Mark's avenue, Brooklyn, and gazed longingly at the beautiful white and scarlet peonies that bloomed within. Finally the temptation became irresistible, and the elder, scaling the low hedge that separated the garden from the street, proceeded to help herself to the flowers.

She had two of the blooms in her hands and was reaching for a third when a smartly dressed woman dashed out of the house and seized her.

"Now, you little thief, I'm going to turn you over to the police," she said.

"Oh, please, missus," begged the child, groveling at her feet; "oh, please don't get me arrested! I only wanted a few—and they looked so pretty."

But the woman was adamant. She was slowly dragging the child to ward the sidewalk and repeating her threat about the police when a shabby looking man came along. He gazed at the two for an instant, while an expression of pained surprise came over his face. Then, raising his dingy derby politely, he inquired what the trouble was.

"Nothing," snapped the woman, "except that I caught this little thief stealing my peonies. And I'm going to teach her a lesson if I have to take her to the station house myself."

A curious look came into the shabby man's eyes. Then he began to fumble in his pockets. A few seconds later he held out to the woman an open palm on which two dimes reposed.

"If these'll pay for what damage she's done, I wish you'd take them and let her go," he said.

An indignant blush spread over the woman's face, and then it deepened into a blush of shame. She relaxed her grasp on the little girl's arm and there she paused and turned toward the shabby one, who still held the two dimes in his hand.

"I'm sorry," she said, "and—thank you." —New York Evening Mail.

Got Even With Old Crusty.

Old Crusty, as his name implied, was not a man who was gifted with gentility. His neighbors, in fact, had as little to do with him as possible. However, when a new visitor came to the town and moved into the house next to him, and knowing not of Mr. Crusty's little failing, there was likely to be trouble soon.

Wanting a book one day, he politely inquired of Mr. C. if he might borrow one from his library.

"You're welcome to read books in my library," was the ungracious reply, "but I make it my rule never to let any leave my house."

Some weeks later Mr. C. was in need of a lawnmower, and he asked the loan of his neighbor's.

"Certainly," was the reply. "But since I make it a rule never to let it leave my lawn, you will be obliged to use it here!" —Answers, London.

Age of Valleys.

The erosive power of water is hard to estimate with any degree of exactness. A method of computing the probable age of valleys will therefore be welcome, even if the figures may seem to some open question. A French scientist has lately reported the results of his studies of the erosive action of an ancient spring in the valley of Laurox, near Lodeve, France. This spring produces about three and one-half quarts of water a second, and in every cubic meter of water (35,314 cubic feet), the scientist found 362 grams of calcareous sand. He estimates that the spring erodes 247 pounds of rock daily, or over 45 tons annually. In the course of a century a stream of this size would be able to hollow out a circular cave 52 feet in diameter and 52 feet in length. At the end of 1,000 years it would make a valley 32 feet deep, 84 feet wide and 238 feet long.

Origin of Salt in Ocean.

The origin of the salt in the sea is usually attributed to the constant washing of salts from the land by rain and rivers, and the gradual depositing of them in the sea, through evaporation. In every 100 parts of sea water there are about two and one-half parts of salt. It has been computed that there are 4,500,000 cubic miles of rock salt in the oceans, 14½ times the bulk of the continent of Europe above high-water mark. The Atlantic is much saltier than the other oceans. Prof. Alexander Woelkow, of St. Petersburg, believes that this is due to the large amount of water vapor that is carried onto the continents bordering this ocean, which are comparatively low where they front the sea.

Naturally.

"Do you play any instrument, Mr. Simpson?"

"Yes, I am a cornetist."

"And your sister?"

"She's a pianist."

"Does your mother play?"

"She's a zitherist."

"And your father?"

"He's a pessimist." —Judge.

TELEGRAPH BRIEFS

Williamstown, Mass., Aug. 28.—The final business session of the eighth annual conference of the Chinese students' alliance of the eastern states, which has been in progress here for the past week, was held this morning, and it was planned to bring the conference to a close with a monster bonfire.

Chicago, Aug. 28.—It is expected that at least a dozen swimmers will compete on next Saturday for the amateur athletic union's one-mile swimming championship, under the auspices of the Illinois Athletic club. The contest will be held in the Lincoln park lagoon over a straightaway course through still water. Each contestant must be accompanied by an expert swimmer in a rowboat. Gold, silver and bronze medals will be awarded the winners of the first three places.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 28.—On the face or incomplete returns, which are, however, considered fairly representative of the vote cast in yesterday's state-wide primaries, Amos P. Muselman of Grand Rapids appears to have defeated Secretary of State Fred C. Martindale by several thousand votes for governor.

Canea, Crete, Aug. 28.—The foreign consuls have informed the Cretan government that the powers intend to prevent any armed expedition to the island of Samos, and that British and French cruisers have been dispatched there for that purpose.

San Francisco, Aug. 28.—Information was received here today that Henry L. Ford, U. S. Marshal and commissioner at Eureka, Cal., who recently was charged with having diverted bail money to a campaign fund and having failed to turn it in to the sub-treasury, as required, had resigned from office. Ford previously denied the charges.

Steel Lake, Wis., Aug. 28.—Last night's storm, which raged over north-western Wisconsin, wrecked buildings in many villages and damaged farm property to a large extent, besides demoralizing the telephone and telegraph service over a large territory.

It is said that the storm extended north about fifty miles.

Charleston, S. C., Aug. 28.—Latest returns received here give Jones for governor, 55,000, against 56,349 for Blaise and 1604 for Duncan. Congressman Legare is victorious. Charleston returns were incomplete at 10 o'clock, and while Jones appears to have carried this county by 600, it may require complete returns to decide. U. S. Senator Tillman, Attorney-General Lyon and State Treasurer Carter carried the county.

Oakland, Cal., Aug. 28.—Miss Adel Buck, an actress, member of a company engaged in producing motion picture films, and who died here Monday, after an operation from appendicitis was identified yesterday as the daughter of Jerome Buck, a Brooklyn newspaper editor. She said just before the operation that opposition of her family to her career as an actress led her to adopt an assumed name. She was a graduate of Wellesley college.

DETROIT AND THE CADILLAC

Detroit was discovered by Cadillac in 1701. Recently at Detroit the "Cadillac" took place and "Cadillac, the Discoverer" impersonated by a well known Detroit man, rode in an automobile named after himself. The "Cadillac" the motor car named after Detroit's founder has been recognized as the world's standard of value. C. E. Woods, 60 Bow street, local agent for Cadillac cars.

BIG SHAKE UP ON RAILROAD

Assist. Superintendents' Job May Be Discontinued

A circular that will cause no small amount of surprise among the employees of the Portland division of the Boston and Maine railroad is expected shortly to be posted which announces the following changes: freight and passenger service. freight transmitter will be general train master with supervision over crews on the road, F. W. Moroy to A. P. Milliken to be assistant train master to look after train. The Postgate assistant with supervision have charge of men at stations. F. Beaumont Sykes will fill the new position of the Portsmouth Electric lines. Frank Barker to have charge of the work in train master's office north union station. The position of assistant superintendent of crew despatching. By this arrangement it is expected the position of assistant superintendent will be filled by Henry Scannell at Boston, and William Sanborn at

I WONDER

Why some of the milk men that make an early morning delivery of their products think they should make all the noise possible with cans and bottles, say nothing of the time they give to growling and swearing at their horses?

If the street department heads ever had a good look at the holes in the asphalt paving on Market square and other places on the main streets?

If they realize the danger there is on the several thoroughfares because of these bad places?

What all the talk about changes on the Boston & Maine railroad for Sept. 1 will amount to?

Why some of the people who have had a visit from burglars at their homes wait for a day or more before they decide to inform the police?

ITEMS OF INTEREST TO NAVY YARD EMPLOYEES

Commended by Secretary.

John B. McGuire and Henry O. Mann, seamen of the Connecticut, have been officially commended by Beckman Winthrop, acting secretary of the navy, for their promptness in jumping overboard and rescuing Edward W. Murphy, an ordinary seaman, on August 19, 1912.

McGuire is 20 years old and has been in the service a little more than three years. His home address is Jamaica Plain, Mass.

Dancing on Board the Cruiser
The crew of the North Carolina is arranging for a farewell party to their friends about September 20. Owing to the fact that a suitable hall cannot be had in this city, and the enlisted men are not allowed the use of the armory at the navy yard, the affair will be held aboard the ship on the quarterdeck.

The party will not be as elaborate as originally planned on account of the big transfer of men to the Philadelphia yard.

The collier Mars and Leonidas came out of the dry dock on Wednesday. The North Carolina and the sunboat Eagle will go in on Friday.

It Makes Them Smile.

Several of the clerical force in the department of supplies and accounts are wearing smiles today due to the announcement from the department that they have been favored with a substantial increase in wages.

Machinists and Helpers.

Ten machinists and three helpers were called by the machinery division today.

Back From the South.

Naval constructor William P. Roberts returned today from a ten days trip to the south.

To Test the Uniforms.

Four squads of marines left the yard today for a tramp tour in four different uniforms, four in number. The march is to determine which rig is the most satisfactory for marching.

This is Some Dock.

The biggest floating dock in the world was launched Aug. 14, from the Cannell and Laid's yard at Birkenhead. It has been constructed for the British Admiralty and is capable of lifting battleships having a displacement of 22,000 tons. It covers an area of two and a quarter acres and has three large workshops on board, besides accommodations for the dock master, petty officers and crew. It will be tested for the Admiralty by the largest vessel in the navy and then towed to Portsmouth.

Get Navy Berths.

Eight young men have just been appointed assistant paymasters in the navy. They are W. E. Moorman, Germantown, Pa.; Ernest H. Barby, Fort Hill, Ky.; Joshua G. Vent, Albany, N. Y.; Harry T. Sandlin, Massachusetts; Oscar W. Latval, Illinois; Arthur H. Eddins, Mississippi; Stanley M. Mathies, Gettysburg, S. D.; and Delos P. Heath, Germantown, Pa.

RAILROAD NOTES

The following Boston and Maine officials were in this city on Wednesday.

W. H. Ray, Superintendent of Portland division, F. D. Hall chief electrician, G. K. Thornton, Division engineer, D. F. Pickering, D. A. Smith master mechanic.

The Boston Advertiser says that the result of President Mellen's letter curtailing the pass privileges of the directors of non operating leased lines will probably be either less travel on the part of the directors on an extraordinary vigilance on the part of these gentlemen in supervising their property.

Building material is being assembled at the depot by the contracting firm of E. N. McNabb and Company who will later begin the enlarging of the depot baggage room and American Express office and store room.

Superintendent W. F. Ray of the Portland division, Boston and Maine railroad has issued a bulletin in which he makes known his appreciation of the good work performed by the railroad employees who had any connection with Rockingham Fair traffic.

The crew despatchers of the eastern district, New Haven road are in session at the South station to arrange final details for extra business Labor Day.

The New York Central railway private car number 300, occupied by General Superintendent of trains, Smith, and General Passenger Agent Vosburgh, arrived at the North station Boston, over the Fitchburg road, from Rutland, Vt., Tuesday, from a fall time card meeting. The party returned to Albany during the night.
